[illegible] years ago she was married [illegible] weighed [illegible] pounds. [illegible] Consumption. We employed five different Physicians, but they gave me no relief. One very prominent Physician told my husband Nov. 1st, that I could not live three weeks, and every one of my friends thought he told the truth. "One night, the first of January, when I had an extremely hard spell of vomiting having VOMITED from 7:30 to 9:30 without ceasing, and my friends expecting it was my last night on earth—my husband seeing one of your strong testimonials in the Salem News, sent a man to the Druggists for a bottle of DANA'S SARSAPARILLA. I took a dose; in a few minutes, threw it up; waited a little and took another; did not vomit [illegible] four days—then stopped entirely. Kept right on taking it according to directions, well diluted with water. My appetite increased. —Constipation ceased. I gained rapidly. I can now eat anything I wish. WEIGH 120 LBS., Enjoy life, and the only thing that worries me is, that I may grow too fleshy, but this don't worry me much.

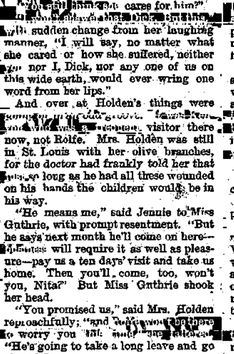
CHAPTER XIV.



"How's the arm today, Ellis?"

A month later and Holden has his [illegible] safely housed under the roof of the hospital at old Pawnee, many severely shattered or suffering great pain. Many will bear to their dying hour the memory of that savage December battle. Some of the twosecorts are doing very well; others perhaps have done better, and are sleeping under the flag. A busy man is Holden, and a very proud one, as he has the right to be, for one and all the troopers love to speak of him as their "fighting newbones." He was in the thick of it all when the rush of the rearward mounted troops swept into and through those fire spitting lodges, and the Indians—warriors, squaws and children—were scattering, fighting fiercely all the way to the shelter of the ravines among the bluffs. Tireless as ever he and his assistants are constantly at the bedsides of the wounded. So is the chaplain, one of the church militant, whose "soul's in arms and eager for the fray," for his friends of the Twelfth are under two fires.

Gallantly and well have they withstood that which, with sudden treachery at the hands of their savage foes, flashed in their very faces. But they have no redress as against this—this civilized lashing at their very backs. The parson's sermon Sunday morning in answer to the driveling sentimentality of certain misguided ecclesiastics far from the scene of conflict almost lifted old Kenyon and his comrades out of their seats. The major hugged his chaplain after service and stopped to shake hands with him every time he met him during the afternoon. In many a pulpit east of the Missouri, with tearful fervor was the picture drawn of those helpless, pleading Indian mothers, those shrieking, terrified little Indian babes, ruthlessly slaughtered by a brutal and infuriated soldiery. Nor were the clergy without warrant for their "bottom facts," since to some mysterious way the representatives of the press, hovering about that impersonal section of military anatomy known as headquarters, were flooding the columns of their journals with paragraphs about the wanton killing of women and children in the fight in front of the Twelfth.

"Holy Joe," as the parson had been termed, knew well the day when, in the seclusion and simplicity of his seminary life, he would have swallowed whole just such statements and turned up the whites of his eyes in sympathetic horror at the recital. But the man of God on the banks of the Merrimac and his brother in the cross on the upper Missouri see very different sides of the vexing Indian question. "Holy Joe" at Pawnee this sparkling month of January was mad clear through at the indignities and aspersions cast upon his brave comrades. He wrestled with the brethren of his cloth and downed them. He even dared to establish a censorship of the press and to keep from the hands of his precious wounded those journals which had assailed the Twelfth.

He had had his hands full, poor fellow, long before the wounded came, for those were dire days and nights when the news was flashed to the post and the widowed and fatherless in their affliction were thrown upon his hands. Poor Mr. Thorpe! Ah, she was only one of several. There was wailing among the wives and little ones down where once the soldiers' families were quartered. Sad faces and tearful eyes were in those old white houses in dread anxiety. There were women broken down with grief and sleepless watching. There was one so ill she could not even now be told she would never look upon the face of her gallant soldier again. But draw the veil. It was on such bleeding hearts and on the men who bore the brunt of the fiercest fighting of the campaign that the press and pulpit fell.

But old Kenyon was in his element. To the best and kindliest of men there is to being able to say, "Didn't I tell you so?" a joy that surpasses the sweets of religious consolation. It was something to hear him declaiming among the artillery and infantry officers during the days that followed the announcement of official investigation at the expense of the Pawnee battalions. "Why, gentlemen," said he, "I have never ceased to thank God I didn't take the chance for [illegible] that came in the reagent [illegible] Dick." "Dick, indeed! And without my consent!" [illegible] "Why, Dick, I know; but—I didn't know him then." [illegible] seven years' service [illegible] about her from [illegible] "But I knew her, Dick, from the first." "I know you did, Bess. You said so; [illegible] I've been an ass," said [illegible] "The major had nothing to say in reply to this accusation. He pondered a moment. "Well, a man may change his mind, can't he, as well as a woman?" "Not as well as a woman, Dick. Still you can change." "And suppose a certain party to change his mind now and [illegible] go away to [illegible]" "What! Brewster change his mind—Winnie, do you mean? Why, confound it, I'd round him up so quick—[illegible] of his going back on Winnie! [illegible] I thought such a thing possible [illegible] him here on his knees at her feet [illegible] a week." "Oh, no, you wouldn't, Dick," said she, laughing softly. "Wouldn't? Why not?" "Just because two women wouldn't [illegible] for one, Winnie for two." [illegible] care for him?" [illegible] sudden change from her laughing manner, "I will say, no matter what she cared or how she suffered, neither you nor I, Dick, nor any one of us on this wide earth, would ever wring one word from her lips." And over at Holden's things were [illegible] visitor there now, not Rolfe. Mrs. Holden was still in St. Louis with her olive branches, for the doctor had frankly told her that as long as he had all these wounded on his hands the children would be in his way.

"He means me," said Jennie to Miss Guthrie, with prompt resentment. "But he says next month he'll come on here—[illegible] will require it as well as pleasure—pay us a ten days' visit and take us home. Then you'll come, too, won't you, Nita?" But Miss Guthrie shook her head.

"You promised us," said Mrs. Holden reproachfully; "and we [illegible] to worry you [illegible] "He's going to take a long leave and go abroad."

"But even that," wrote Jennie to her liege, "did not seem to comfort her. She says she will never, probably, visit Pawnee again; and I know well as can be it is all on account of [illegible] What can there have been behind it all? Now that the Twelfth is coming home [illegible] you have everything running smoothly, don't you think it possible to find out something about that strange [illegible] You have never written a word, and I can see Nita's eyes [illegible] me every time she knows I [illegible] The other day I was [illegible] and looking over some old [illegible] drew from the bottom of a [illegible] across a picture of hers just like the one that is in the little silver [illegible] of her table in her room at Benicia, except that this was blurred and worn. 'Why, Nita!' I cried unthinkingly, as she entered. 'I [illegible] told me mine was the only one left of its kind, and here's one that looks as if it might have been worn next some [illegible] heart and been kissed a million—and then I happened to look at the [illegible] for she had turned white as death and was stretching out her hands. 'Where did you find that?' she whispered at last. 'Between the leaves of this old album,' I said. 'It was lying there loosely.' 'I had not seen it for six years. I thought I had burned it with' [illegible]

"And then she broke off suddenly and shuddered, but seized it and took it away. If she would only talk to me of Jack! but she will not, even though I know that ever since the suicide of Mr. Percival last August Mr. Guthrie has been working day and night repairing the old matter. All the friends of the Guthries are now more and more confident that Jack was [illegible] innocent—that Mr. Percival as president of the bank had made away with those missing funds and securities and charged it to Jack and to his friend [illegible] Worden. An effort has been made to get at Mr. Percival's papers, all of them, but his widow is still so broken [illegible] she cannot be seen by any one, say [illegible] physicians. It is believed she knows something of the inner history of the [illegible] case, and that she is striving to [illegible] what she knows for her [illegible] sake. Of course people say she has behaved very ill—that she ought to call and restore to the bank real estate and property that from time to time Mr. Percival had settled upon her. But she [illegible] goes into hysterics when lawyers are mentioned.

"Mr. Guthrie is now in a nightly nervous excitable state, which naturally reacts upon Nita. I wish we could get her away from here. [illegible] went west, you remember, when he left her with us at Pawnee. He went in the hopes of finding some trace of Mr. Worden, so I learn now, and to urge the immediate return to St. Louis of [illegible] old and intimate friend to [illegible] justice at the hands of the Percivals, for he was ruined irretrievably by Percival's accusation when dismissed from the bank. But he has [illegible], and I know that they have about given him up for dead. A detective [illegible] has been at work for months, and [illegible] of late men have come to [illegible] if it were not possible to find somewhere a picture of Mr. Worden; but Nita says none exist that she knows of. I believe that she burned all that she [illegible]

"Why will she not [illegible] and tell [illegible] about it—she who used to have no secret from me! We [illegible] deeply in love with her and that she was believed to care for him, but there was a fearful scene between him and Mr. Guthrie over poor Jack's body. The old gentleman was wild with grief, and, in his misery he upbraided Worden as the cause of it all—accused him of being the thief and cursed him for concealing the crime at the expense of Jack's life and honor. Possible he did [illegible] if then, but since Percival's death everything is changed. I believe he would give all he owns to make amends to Worden now, and sometimes I think that that is what's killing Nita."

"That that is what is killing Nita," read Holden again, this time half aloud, as he pondered over the word. Then a sound at the door attracted him. He glanced up quickly.

"Oh, come in, sergeant. I did not hear your knock."

"I beg your pardon, sir," was the answer, in Ellis' deep voice, a faint flush rising to his pale, black bearded face. "I knocked twice at the outer door, and the [illegible] the doctor to be here, so I [illegible] in the hall. Am I too early, sir?"

"Not at all. Come in. Shut the door. Sit down. What's the matter? Is your wife worse?"

"No, sir, she is quite comfortable, thank you, sir. I've come to ask a favor of you, sir, if you can spare the time to listen to me."

"Why, of course I can. What is it, Ellis? Is anything wrong at your quarters?"

"No, sir, not exactly wrong, sir, but I want to ask your advice, sir, and I know you will give me the best you can, sir, because you have been so good to us ever since we came to the post, sir, and I have heard the lieutenant say that you were the best friend he had in the world, sir, and I know you are, sir, because you have been so good to us, sir, and I want your advice, sir, about—about—my daughter, sir."

"Why, what can she be about, Ellis? I thought she was a good, quiet, sensible girl, and very pretty and attractive, too, I should say, judging from her mother and you. What has she been doing?"

"Nothing, sir, that I know of, except that she has been meeting a young man, sir, and I don't like it, sir, because I don't know anything about him, sir, except that he is a civilian, sir, and I don't like civilians, sir, since—since—my wife's sister married one, sir, and—and—I don't like them, sir, and I don't like this one, sir, and I want you to tell me what to do, sir."

"Why, Ellis, I don't know what to say. Who is he? Where does he live? What does he do? Does he come to the post? Does he know your daughter's father is a sergeant?"

"No, sir, he does not come to the post, sir, and he does not know I am her father, sir, because I have never let him see me, sir, and I don't like to let him see me, sir, because I don't like him, sir, and I don't want him to know my daughter, sir, because I don't like him, sir, and I don't like to let her see him, sir, because I don't like him, sir, and I don't like him, sir, because I don't like him, sir, and I don't like him, sir, because I don't like him, sir, and I don't like

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The following [illegible] candidates [illegible]

[illegible]

HARRY R. [illegible]

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.
J. H. HUBBER, OF [illegible]

THE Gorham [illegible] will exhibit at the World's Fair a [illegible] modeled by [illegible] wrought in silver, [illegible] $[illegible]

GOVERNOR PATTISON [illegible] ed the Senate that he had vetoed the bill authorizing the trial of issues on the statement and affidavit of defense and the taking of judgment for the [illegible] admitted due therein.

ON Monday the famous hat [illegible] cases were again decided by the United States Supreme Court against the Government. It is estimated that the decision will result in a loss to the Treasury Department of from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000. Other estimates place the loss at $20,000,000.

A BILL has passed both Houses of the Legislature providing that school [illegible] tors shall hereafter furnish books [illegible] and without price. It is believed [illegible] appropriation from the State of half a million dollars annually will do the business.

THE Pension [illegible] has discovered a [illegible] An attorney of Norfolk, Va., named W. R. Drewry, now under arrest, is charged with securing fraudulent pension [illegible] by the wholesale, using as his instruments in many cases colored women and men who could not read or write.

"THE one man power or bossism [illegible] prevails in the States of New York and Pennsylvania," says Senator John Sherman, "could not exist in any of the Western states. We have two [illegible] Cincinnati and Cleveland, but they can not control the 4,000,000 people in the State. Bossism has not taken root in the West."

THE New York World has been calling vigorously on Attorney General Olney to commence legal proceedings looking to the breaking up of many trusts and combines in the country, which have for their purpose the raising and keeping up of prices of commodities largely in use by the people, as the sugar trust, the rubber trust, the cordage trust, etc.

A [illegible] of the League of National Republican Clubs met at Louisville, Ky., last week. Thomas H. Carter was re-elected as chairman and Joe Manley as secretary. President Clarkson in opening his [illegible] Republicanism of Lincoln, Grant and Blaine"—studiedly omitting the name of Harrison. Evidently Harrison is "not in it" with the crowd led by Clarkson.

THE leather trust with its $120,000,000 of capital is started, it is claimed, as a defensive measure for the leather men against themselves. It is to stop the bidding for hides and material for tanning, and the under bidding to get rid of the manufactured product. Leather has a way of going up and down in price and upsetting all calculations of manufacturers who must live up to their contracts, and try to average somewhere. But not everybody will, believe a trust can have this utility and innocence.

THE Baltimore Sun says that "free sugar is to some extent a delusion and a false pretense. About 250,000,000 [illegible] of sugar was imported into the United States free of duty during the year 1892. This went into the refineries, and the duty on refined sugar enabled the sugar monopoly to charge a small advance over the proper price for the sugar in domestic use. Nor is this all. The [illegible] collected from the people between $9,000,000 and $10,000,000 last year to hand over as a sugar bounty under the law which repealed the tax on sugar. This is equivalent to a tax of more than a quarter of a cent a pound on all sugar imported."

THE Chinese must go. The constitutionality of the Geary Chinese [illegible] ion law, providing for the deportation of resident Chinese [illegible] with the registering provisions of the law, was affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States on Monday. Justice Gray delivered the opinion. Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Field and Brewer dissented. There is nothing for the officers to do but enforce the law, which will result in the exclusion of the vast majority of the 107,475 Chinese [illegible] of this country, as shown by the figures of the census of 1890. The public will watch with some interest the action of the Chinese Government.

THE NILES TAX BILL.

The so-called Niles tax bill was unmercifully slaughtered in what was supposed to be the house of its friends, when it came up for final passage last week, says a [illegible] of its strongest opponents were [illegible] those representing farming districts. [illegible] ter county, who has been prominently mentioned for State Treasurer, he being one of the best known farmers in the State. Very little discussion was indulged in when the bill came up for final passage. General Niles had made his speech in its favor on second reading and had nothing further to say. State Treasurer Boyle had opposed it on second reading and he was silent.

The bill, if passed, would have introduced an entirely new system of taxation, especially on corporate property, and would have imposed new burdens on mercantile and agricultural interests. It would have taxed the stock of goods on the merchant's shelves and the machinery with which the farmer [illegible] his crops. Not only did interest bearing notes come under its provisions, but the book accounts as well. It made no attempt to equalize the burdens of taxation but instead increased them, and its failure of passage was not deeply regretted, even by its warmest friends. The tax question, though, is not yet settled in Pennsylvania. A [illegible] overhauling of the subject is not far off; but it must be done in a [illegible]

Ex-Auditor General Niles, who [illegible] was a leading [illegible] the opposition [illegible]

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

[illegible] Session—Senator Sherman's [illegible]

Washington, May [illegible]—Special Correspondence. [illegible] House [illegible] have [illegible] to be pressed [illegible] is probable that President Cleveland's message to Congress, and may [illegible] calling the extra session, will be largely devoted to arguments for speedy action upon them—the repeal of the obnoxious Federal election laws; the levying of an income tax; the repeal of the Sherman silver law and of the tax on currency issued by State banks, and a complete revision of the tariff, [illegible] the duties.

Secretary Carlisle defied the high muckamucks of mugwumpery who tried to bulldoze him into retaining [illegible] can chiefs of divisions in his Department, and is proceeding to replace them with Democrats, just as he at first intended to do, and working [illegible]

Reforms in keeping with [illegible] ideas are being quietly introduced [illegible] of the Government departments [illegible] heads have an opportunity to investigate abuses which have grown up under Republican rule. Secretary Herbert's order that no more [illegible] should be granted leave of absence to enter private employ was followed by Secretary Lamont's determination to stop similar abuses in the army [illegible] to refuse to allow it in future [illegible] voke the leaves of all those officers engaged in other occupations than those granted by special act [illegible] Secretary Lamont has also [illegible] his [illegible] zation in that important bureau of the War Department known as the [illegible] of Records and Pension. [illegible] is closely associated with the Pension Bureau as it has to verify the [illegible] record of every applicant for a pension. Some forty or fifty changes have already been made in this division.

It may be true that Comptroller of Currency Eckels has had no [illegible] the actual details of bank [illegible] ing the past few days when the [illegible] sion of [illegible] frequent enough to be alarming, has convinced the Treasury officials [illegible] the banking world that he is thoroughly [illegible] from the half that [illegible] cool-headed business man [illegible] he has never had a shadow of [illegible] fore. He has proven himself to be a valuable assistant to Secretary Carlisle [illegible] with suspicion [illegible] has had no little to do with restoring that public confidence without which banks of no kind can [illegible] exist. Cleveland [illegible] in selecting that young man for Comptroller.

Commissioner Lochren is already finding out [illegible] he [illegible] was [illegible] chief of the Pension Bureau merely to draw a salary. Already a series of frauds, all put through by one pension attorney located at Norfolk, Va., have come to light, and [illegible] exposure [illegible] to do with the Commissioner being determined to get to the bottom and to root out the evil. The worst thing about the whole work done by this attorney is that it was called to Commissioner Raum's attention last year and he declined to prosecute him, because it might injure the Republican party. The [illegible] of money obtained by the fraudulent pensioners [illegible] detected until the attorney have escaped their investigation, but it is already known that it is more than $10,000. [illegible] is one thing he can be certain of, he will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law by Commissioner Lochren, just as fast as the necessary evidence can be gathered, regardless of who or what may be injured thereby. Judge Lochren has abrogated the notorious "complete files" rule, which was made by Raum to please the pension attorney who indorsed his notes for twenty odd thousand dollars soon after he took charge of the Pension Office.

CHINESE MUST GO.

The Supreme Court Holds the Geary Law Valid.

The United States Supreme Court has rendered a decision in the Chinese [illegible] upholding the constitutionality of the Geary law, and affirming the decision of the court below, which ordered every Chinaman not registered liable to deportation from the United States. The decision of the court was delivered by Justice Gray [illegible] because of lack of time a [illegible] had not been prepared, and that it would be filed later. Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Field and Brewer dissented.

After the opinions had been made known J. Hubley Ashton, the Washington counsel of the six Companies, [illegible] with Mr. Choate, presented the case of the Chinese to the Supreme Court, [illegible] for a hearing at the next term with a full bench. Justice Harlan is absent, and the court at present stands five to three in favor of the law. The court after a short recess denied the motion. Justice Gray pronounced the decision of the court. He sketched the progress of the law rapidly and then proceeded to say that the principles of public law had already been the subject of recent decisions in the Supreme Court of the United States. It was one of the fundamental principles of the law of nations, he said, that every independent nation had the inherent right to expel aliens of its territory and to order their departure [illegible] so far as the treaty obligations of the government to citizens of another country had been made independent of the action of their own government. [illegible] all [illegible] laws to carry out the powers [illegible]

On the political department of the Government devolved the care of national relations. It had been in two cases that the power of [illegible] in executive the aid [illegible] matters to [illegible] as [illegible] The courts [illegible] revise the decisions or the action [illegible] effect in [illegible]

[illegible] pass upon the constitutionality of legislative acts, it was the very [illegible] to do so when the discharge of that duty was [illegible] upon them. He entertained no doubt that [illegible] amendments were universal in their application, and that while the general government was invested, so far as [illegible] were concerned, with all the power necessary to the maintenance of its absolute independence and security it could not, in virtue of a supposed inherent sovereignty, absolutely deal with persons lawfully and peacefully within its domain. The act before the court was not an act to abrogate or repeal a treaty nor to expel Chinamen lawfully here, and no such intent could be imputed to Congress. Its object was to [illegible] a method of expulsion and [illegible] of Chinese [illegible] by the courts.

Brewer read an opinion declaring the act unconstitutional, and that if it were upon the law was no guarantee that similar legislation would not be enacted as to other classes of our population than the Chinese.

The Chinese Minister declined to talk about the decision or the probable action of his government.

It is estimated that 100,000 Chinese have refused to register under the Geary law, and it now becomes the duty of the government to deport them. It is estimated that it will cost from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 to accomplish this.

FATAL RESULT OF A JOKE.

A Shop Girls Mind Wrecked by a Rubber Snake.

Miss Mamie Lynch, a pretty employee of the Union Metallic Cartridge Co.'s factory, at Bridgeport, Conn., lies at her [illegible] with her mind a wreck, as the result of a joke played upon her by a shopmate. Mamie was employed in the shot shell department with other girls, among them Etta Jamison. Etta is of a lively disposition and is always playing tricks on her companions. The other day she took a hideous looking rubber snake with her to work. Miss Jamison picked out as her prey Miss Lynch, owing to her high, nervous temperament. While Mamie was at dinner she tied a string to the snake, and [illegible] through the shops at which Miss Lynch worked, as if it were crawling. Shortly after Mamie had returned to work Miss Jamison [illegible] the snake [illegible] the machine, and [illegible] Lynch [illegible] Screaming [illegible] violently [illegible] the floor [illegible] Lynch [illegible] the girl. FATAL FIGHT BETWEEN WORKMEN.

A Pitched Battle in Which Ten Men Are Injured.

[illegible] between the night men and day men employed in the Sea Cliff Stone Quarry, about [illegible] miles this side of Glen Cove, L. I., [illegible] has [illegible] for some time [illegible] quarry [illegible] Saturday night [illegible] men [illegible] Hungarians [illegible] Italians [illegible] Some [illegible] Hungarians [illegible] over a preacher, and he was [illegible] to preach on the rock quarry. The fight [illegible] between the two camps, in which ten men were killed and many badly injured.

Progress of Home Rule.

The Irish home rule bill is making little progress in Parliament owing to dilatory tactics of the opposition. Up to the close of last week but one of the 85 clauses had been completed. All of the dilatory measures, however, were leveled against the first clause, and more rapid progress is now looked for. It is admitted on all hands that Mr. Gladstone has complete control of the majority, and that never in his brilliant career has he displayed such eloquence, power and tactical skill as in the present great historical contest. There is a grave fear, however, that any movement may witness his collapse under the tremendous strain he so cheerfully bears.

The Infanta is Particular.

It is said at Washington that the visit of the Infanta Eulalia, of Spain, to this country, depends upon [illegible] for an exchange of courtesies between herself and the President. The Spanish [illegible] Infanta is not a sovereign this arrangement is disputed. The Spanish royal family was invited by act of Congress, however, and it is probable that a satisfactory arrangement will be made to receive the royal representative.

The American warships Atlanta and Alliance have been despatched to the scene of trouble to protect American interests.

The Pope to See Dr. McGlynn.

A cable dispatch from Rome says: The Rev. Father Edward McGlynn, who was recently restored to his priestly functions by Papal Delegate Satolli, is expected daily in Rome. Father McGlynn has already asked for an audience with the Pope. The newspaper Sera states that Father McGlynn does not intend to republicate his well-known views on doctrinal subjects, having assured of [illegible]

BODY FOUND.

Murderer Robbie Buried at Portsmouth.

The body of murderer Frank W. Robie, the condemned man who, with murderer [illegible] was hanged at Concord, N. H., on the morning of April 21, was buried at Portsmouth, N. H., on Friday afternoon. The remains were taken from the State prison at Concord in a hearse at 1 o'clock and were [illegible] to Portsmouth by way of Epsom, Pittsfield, Barrington, Rochester and Dover. The hearse was accompanied by a few friends of the family, who had taken charge of the body. The remains were [illegible] at the residence of Robie's father, Mr. Robie, on Islington street, Portsmouth, where the funeral took place at 2 o'clock, Rev. Mr. [illegible] officiating. The burial was private, only the immediate relatives being present. The remains were placed in a [illegible] violently [illegible] Robie was reported to have received several thousand dollars from [illegible] in Germany to aid [illegible] his escape, and his lawyers said that they believed the report to be true. The [illegible] of the opinion that Pallister may also have been swamped by the [illegible] and drowned [illegible] had killed Robie, and a careful search of the river is being made for his body.

Later—The body of Pallister was found by two fishermen floating face downward in the water [illegible] Tuesday morning. A bullet wound was found under the left eye. The supposition is that Roehl shot Pallister and then committed suicide.

THE POPE AND THE ARMIES.

A Plan to Secure the Peace of Europe Through Rome's Mediation.

The Osservatore Romano has published a [illegible] leader under the caption "[illegible]." The article [illegible] of the recent reports that the Pope will invite the European great powers to disarm. The writer says that the Pope alone is competent to initiate a movement toward the general reduction of the great modern armies, and then suggests a plan for rendering easy the preservation of peace without soldiers. He recommends that broad neutral zones, separating antagonistic powers be established. The territory to be included in these zones would be Switzerland, Savoy, Alsace, Luxembourg, Schleswig, Belgium, the Netherlands, Poland and the Balkan States. "The crowning safeguard of peace" are the last words of the leader, "would be the neutrality of Rome, the natural common capital of all peoples."

A French Hero.

Cheering crowds welcomed General Alfred A. Dodds on his landing at Marseilles fresh from his brilliant campaign against the blood-thirsty King Behanzin of Dahomey. He is now a popular hero, having secured, after ten months' hot fighting, the abdication of Behanzin and the annexation of his kingdom to French domains. This gives a new territory 130 miles square, and puts [illegible] taught the French troops how to fight the natives, and drew up the plan of campaign against Dahomey, upon which [illegible] secuted to a successful issue.

Unsound Banks Suffer.

The Capital National Bank of Indianapolis, which had a large deposit with the collapsed Chemical Bank of Chicago, was forced to close its doors. Its liabilities are $1,050,000, and assets $250,000.

The Columbia National Bank of Chicago, with a capital of $1,000,000, closed its doors. The failure was due to an unprecedented withdrawal of deposits. Depositors will be paid in full.

The firm of R. R. Robinson & Co., bankers and brokers, Wilmington, failed with liabilities placed at $326,000, and assets $204,000.

Newfoundland Remains Independent.

The resolution in favor of the union of New Foundland with the Dominion of Canada has been defeated in the New Foundland Assembly by a large majority. The Premier, Sir William Whiteway, stated that though he had been in favor of a union between New Foundland and Canada for the past 20 years, he would not attempt to force the country in that direction without the people requested that step.

A New Navy For Mexico.

Warships of the most improved pattern are to be purchased by the Mexican Government and the navy is to be otherwise improved and increased. It is President Diaz's intention also to improve the standard of the regular army. New rules and regulations are soon to be issued to govern the age and physical condition of men entering the army.

As a sign of defiance to King Oscar and to those who are advising him to coerce the Norwegians by force of arms, the Radicals in the Norwegian Storthing have introduced a bill in that body providing that the emblem of the union of Sweden and Norway shall be eliminated from the Norwegian flag.

Cause of Indian Troubles.

Governor Waite, of Colorado, wrote a letter to President Cleveland, charges that the Indian agents have been negligent. He said the reason for the recent outbreaks is that the red skins have been permitted to leave their reservations. He asks that the President issue an order prohibiting this in the future.

China will Retaliate.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Baldwin, for many [illegible] Methodist missionary in China, said in an interview in [illegible] if the Chinese exclusion act is enforced, and Chinese are expelled from the country because they fail to register, Americans in China will be similarly treated.

Harris' Last Words.

The last statement of Carlyle W. Harris has been issued by the State's Prison Department at Albany. In it he reiterates the statement that he was innocent of the crime, and that his wife was a morphine eater. Harris' body was laid in the grave in an Albany cemetery.

Elections in Australia.

The successful candidates at the Queensland elections were four Ministerialists, five Labor candidates, one Opportunist and one Independent. Lisner, the Minister of Mines, was defeated by Jackson of the Labor Party; but Gassner, the Labor leader, was defeated.

—Two Tioga county papers are attacking Thomas H. Bailey, who is a candidate for the renomination for County Commissioner on the Republican ticket. Of course the papers are not of the Republican persuasion, while Democratic and Independent Republican papers are not saying a word, being fully satisfied that the facts presented by the GAZETTE are indisputable. A mongrel sheet, printed at Mansfield, is the only one in the county that makes an attempt—a very feeble one—to defend them.

—Mr. Mark Ford, Collector of Covington township, has skipped out with between $1,000 and $1,200 of the county and local taxes of the township which he had collected. It is supposed that Ford is in Chicago, having stated a few weeks ago that he had secured a position on the police force in that city. Last Monday Messrs. O. D. Ford and W. M. Morris, bondsmen of the crooked Collector, came to this borough to settle the delinquency on the State and county taxes, amounting to between $500 and $600. Ford's embezzlement of the township taxes is placed at about $600.

—The Commencement exercises of the High School will be held at Annandale Hall on Friday evening, June 23. The graduating class consists of Emily King, Alice Petit, Pauline Ortman, Lillian Fischler and C. W. Hardt. The address will be delivered by Rev. C. A. Oakes, the assistant of T. DeWitt Talmage at the Brooklyn Tabernacle. The reception and banquet of the Alumni Association will be held at the Coles House, Thursday evening, June 1st, beginning at 7:30 p. m. The schools will close on Friday afternoon, June 23, at which time the certificates of promotion will be awarded to pupils in person only.

—Mr. Fred A. Weiler, of this borough, received a telegram last Monday stating that his brother, Philip, who resided at Flemington, N. J., was killed on Saturday. A later dispatch from Flemington said: "Philip Weiler, a hardware merchant of this place, while out driving on Saturday afternoon, was thrown from his carriage, by his horse running away, and the vehicle striking against the stone [illegible]. His neck was broken. He was a Union soldier in the late war, a prominent member of Flemington Council, Royal Arcanum, and a wealthy citizen." Mr. Weiler left on Tuesday afternoon to attend the funeral of his brother.

—The editor and proprietor of the [illegible] newspaper—for he is usually [illegible] the same person—does not find his [illegible] lot a bed of roses, says the Corning Times. More and more the city dailies [illegible] been trenching on his field, and to meet with success he must cultivate the [illegible] usually well patronized by the people of the vicinity, but as every county, and in fact every important village, has at least two of these journals, the field for each is greatly limited, and the conducting of a successful [illegible] must be a man of unusual tact and rare business qualifications and an excellent judge of human nature, not a bona fide leader of men.

—A small but saucy cyclone visited Blossburg last week Monday afternoon and stirred up things considerably. A grocery man who was delivering some goods was swept off his feet and landed about twenty feet distant. The goods in his delivery wagon were scattered about in all directions. Goodness! stones were blown into the air and carpets that were hanging on lines were riddled by the force of the wind. Several fences were mown down and other loose material scattered about promiscuously. The cyclone is described as a black, funnel-shaped cloud, and it roared like a train and frightening the people along its track. It is said that during all the [illegible] the sun shone [illegible] but the [illegible]

Death of Lew Bullard.

A dispatch was received here yesterday morning announcing the serious illness of Mr. Lewis M. Bullard at Hornellsville, [illegible] by a later message, received about noon, announcing his death. But few in this place were aware that he had been ill and his death was unexpected by those who had learned of his sickness.

Lewis Bullard was about 35 years of age and was the eldest son of Mrs. M. Bullard. He had always resided in this borough and was well-known in this locality. Last September he went to Hornellsville to receive treatment at the Sanitarium. He was successfully treated [illegible] position in the institution, which he held up to the time of being taken sick about [illegible]

[illegible] was possessed of many good traits of character. He was a genial, jovial, kind-hearted fellow, generous to a fault, and had few, if any, enemies. He had hosts of warm friends in this immediate vicinity who will deeply regret the loss of his sad and untimely death. The heartfelt sympathy of the entire community goes out to the [illegible] her deep bereavement.

The remains will be brought to this borough to-day and the funeral will be held from the late home of the deceased on Water street to-morrow afternoon.

The Liberty Borough Matter.

On Tuesday Judge Mitchell heard the evidence and the arguments on the petition for the granting of a charter to the proposed Liberty borough. The objections were raised by several farmers whose farms had been [illegible] into the borough, the benefits they would receive would not compensate for the increased taxes they would be obliged to pay. A large number of prominent citizens of Liberty [illegible] that the borough as proposed would include eight hundred acres, being a mile long and somewhat less in width. After hearing the evidence the Judge said he would not grant a charter for the borough as proposed, but if the applicants would modify the size he would consider the question. The opposition announced their willingness to accept the terms offered by the Court and it was informally agreed that the borough should be formed with the exception of about seventy acres. The Judge appointed D. L. Deane to make a survey and furnish the Court with a map of the same to aid in determining the matter.

A Beautiful Banner.

Tyaghton Commandery, No. 28, Knights Templar, of this borough, recently purchased a beautiful banner, cost [illegible]. It is 36 by 54 inches, of white silk of the finest texture, and the embroidery is all hand-work and of gold bullion. In the center is a reproduction of a scene on Pine creek, in oil, and a picture of a Sir Knight. At the top are the words, "Tyaghton Commandery, No. 28, K. T., Wellsboro." On the reverse side is a Maltese cross, and the motto, "In hoc signo vinces." The design is a beautiful one, and exquisitely gotten up.

The members of the Commandery are making arrangements to attend the Grand Conclave to be held at Wilkesbarre, May 23d and 24d. A handsome vestibuled coach will be provided for their use by the D. L. & W. Railway, and will leave this place on Monday morning, May 22d. It is now expected that about forty Sir Knights will attend. The new banner will be used for the first time on this occasion.

A Home Wedding.

A very pretty home wedding took place on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Edgar Sheffer, on East avenue, when Mr. Sheffer's daughter, Maud E., and Mr. Harry J. Wilcox were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. Only a few intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Dr. Shaw. Elegant refreshments were served and the happy couple were presented with many beautiful and costly gifts. The bride and groom are well-known young people. Mr. Wilcox is employed in the Wellsboro National Bank and Mrs. Wilcox has been employed as cashier in Hart's store for some time and is one of Wellsboro's most estimable young ladies. We extend the usually congratulations and wish them a long and happy life.

Democratic Postmasters.

During the past week the following postmasters have been appointed in Tioga county: John Frutiger, Hoytville; E. T. Gaines, and Jacob Brodhead, Lloyd. These are the first changes in this county under the new administration. Mr. Martin was appointed to succeed Mr. W. H. Vermilyea, who resigned soon after Harrison's defeat. There were two other applicants for this office, Maxwell Woodward and John Fischler, and a hot fight has been waging for several months. Mr. Martin held the office under Cleveland's former administration. The office is worth about $900 a year.

One Hundred and Two Years Old.

Mr. Thomas Benson, of Phillips Station, near Westfield, was in town on Tuesday. He claims to be one hundred and two years old and walked from Phillips Station, a distance of about 140 miles, to Galeton. The mill will be a two-band and gang mill.

[illegible] Arnot Enjoins Boycotting Meat.

Becoming convinced that there is [illegible] pose heroic treatment. The [illegible] Advertiser says they will resort to the [illegible] pursued by our fathers at Boston, who would not drink British [illegible] tea, but threw it into the sea. At a war meeting of the local assembly at Arnot the following resolution was [illegible]

Resolved, That owing to a conspiracy of local butchers with the Swift Beef Company to raise the price of meat, that we, the miners of Arnot, abstain from using it for one month, [illegible] all the people of Blossburg, Landrum, Morris Run, Fall Brook and Tioga [illegible] in this crusade against the combination.

[illegible] that the Swift Company, [illegible] shared that the Swift Company [illegible] they could procure it and the dealers began buying and disposed of their slaughter houses. Then the beef company bought up all the live stock in sight and [illegible] the price to the dealers, who in turn raised it to their customers.

Hunting Post-Office Robbers.

The six United States Post-office Inspectors of this and neighboring districts, in which 8,000 post-offices are said to be located, are making exertions to run down three organized gangs of post-office robbers, who have been looting New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey post-offices for two months past. Safes have been blown open and large amounts of money and valuable stamps, [illegible] estimated in value at $10,000 altogether, and many registered letters have been carried away. The offices at Tioga, Blossburg, Lebanon, Colombia, Jackson Summit, Mahony City and Towanda, were among those plundered or broken into.

The Inspectors claim to have [illegible] that three different gangs, [illegible] burg, and who carry away their booty in buggies, have been doing all of the nefarious work. They say that one man goes ahead and learns the working of an office, and afterwards acts as a sentinel while his confederates blow open the safe. The government is sending burglar-proof safes to all principal offices now.

Anti-Cigarette.

A bill passed the House at Harrisburg some time ago which has now been concurred in by the Senate to the effect that the State, by orders drawn on the treasurer, should reimburse the different counties for the amounts paid to jurors in attendance at the several courts during the year. This is another stroke at the State finances and will take from the State Treasury nearly half a million dollars. It is very doubtful whether the Governor will sign the bill. There are some very strong arguments that can be used against it, one of which is that it will tend to create extravagance among the different counties. At present the utmost care is taken by the court, in order to curtail the expenses. The number of terms of courts are lessened and every effort is put forth to save the counties from needless expenditures. The purpose, of course, is to relieve local taxation, and in this it is commendable. It is a question, though, whether this matter shouldn't be left in the counties for their own regulation and the relief which it would afford be afforded in some other way.

Ought to Defeat Any Candidate.

The Blossburg Advertiser is opposing the renomination of two of the Commissioners of Tioga county on the ground that they both ride up and down the county on free railroad passes, and colonize [illegible] Advertiser further charges these officials with putting in bills for more days' work than there are days in the year. These ought to be sufficient grounds to defeat the re-nomination of any candidate.—Smethport (McKean county) Democrat.

Still there are a large number of Republican voters in this county who think it is perfectly right and just for Messrs. Bailey and Stebbins to use free passes and charge for mileage. The honest and conservative Republicans are not thinking that way, however, and will be heard from on June 10th.

Tioga and Bradford Game Bill.

A bill of especial interest to Tioga and Bradford counties was passed finally in the House at Harrisburg last Friday. It was championed by Representative Niles and the members from both counties gave him able assistance. It prohibits the catching, taking or keeping for sale, within Tioga and Bradford counties, any grouse or pheasant, quail or partridge, woodcock, wild pigeon, trout or bass, and also prohibits the trilling of deer or fawn for a period of three years. The purpose of the bill is to stop the pot hunting of game dealers from outside districts. The measure does not affect legitimate sportsmen in the two counties. The words "or keeping" will be stricken out in the Senate.

Another Big Saw-Mill.

The Austin Autograph says: O. S. Gaffetson, of Buffalo, N. Y., and W. V. Harvey and W. H. Sullivan, of this borough, have signed a contract with F. H. & C. W. Goodyear, to build another large saw-mill, with a capacity of three hundred thousand feet per day, to cut the timber in the Pine creek water shed. The location of the mill has not yet been determined upon; but will be built either at Galeton, Gaines, or at the mouth of Pine creek, about 140 miles east of Galeton. The mill will be a two-band and gang mill.
